Montana 1948 Synopsis: This is a story of love and courage, of power abused, and one main's choice between loyality and justice. The sheriff of a small town must have to choose between family loyalty and arresting his brother despite the consequences to his own family Purpose: This novel provides an introduction to Western literature from a local perspective while allowing students to compare/contrast their responses to the same themes they find in the more classical world literature of the sophomore curriculum. Shoeless Joe Synopsis: This is a novel about dreams, magic, and relationships in life. An Iowa farmer carves a baseball diamond on his farm to honor his hero, Shoeless Joe Jackson. He finds, however, relationships beyond his idol and the true meaning of why he built the field Purpose: The book is at an age appropriate vocabulary and has an easily comprehendible plot line. These elements allow students to more easily delve into the figurative elements of symbol, metaphor, characterization and prediction.	Kinsella	W. P.	H

Stuck in Neutral Synopsis: Shawn McDaniel is a 14-year-old boy who has cerebral palsy and is unable to control any of his muscles. While the world around him believes him to be severely retarded, he is actually of high mental capability. He is, in essence, trapped in his body and is only free to fantasize about what his life might have been like if he were like the other kids in his school. He struggles with family life as well in that his parents are divorced and his father is unsure whether to allow Shawn to keep living under these conditions. Purpose: This book teaches perspective using a boy who is both very similar and dissimilar to the student reader. The book encourages student response and prediction as the novel is open-ended.
