College Funding for Students with Disabilities	Attending college can be an exciting and enriching experience. It can also be a costly one. In addition to tuition, fees, books, and supplies, other expenses to think about include room and board, health insurance, transportation, and spending money. A combination of financial aid and other outside funding resources can help you meet college costs. Common forms of financial aid include grants, loans, work-study, and scholarships. Some are available specifically to students with disabilities. Many students use a combination of these financial aid resources. It is important to remember that financial aid results in a partnership of the student, parents, postsecondary educational institutions, state and federal governments, and/or private organizations. Such a partnership requires cooperation, communication, and an understanding by each of their responsibilities within the financial aid process. The financial aid office at the school you plan to attend is a good place to begin your search for financial aid information. An administrator there can tell you about student aid available from your state, the school itself, and other sources. View this website for information on scholarships for students with disabilities.	Varies	Varies Gr 12

Discus Awards	Traditional high school awards are a lot like freshman algebra—a simple formula without a lot of variables. Discus is different. We look for students who excel in more ways than one, both in and outside the classroom. If you march to the beat of your own drum, while wearing many hats, and teaching an old dog to build a better mousetrap, we want to hear from you. The Discus Awards is the only high school awards program that shows colleges that you have the passion and complexity to make your mark in the real world, not just on paper. Nominate yourself or someone you know today for this national recognition program for all-around high school students. Students in grades 9-12 can nominate themselves or another student. The Discus Awards offers students access to a unique portfolio of college scholarships. For example, throughout the school year, a panel of education professionals and others uniquely accomplished in one of the 10 Discus Awards Attributes will select ten Discus Awards Finalists as recipients of a $2000 National All-Around Student Scholarship. National All-Around Student Scholarship winners will be announced twice per program year at www.DiscusAwards.com and on the Discus Awards Facebook Page. Your first step to winning a national college scholarship and to getting help paying for college is to submit a nomination for Discus Awards recognition.
