Then, look to see what bill you are paying with in the 3rd question ($1, $5, $10, or $20). Then, set up the subtraction problem. The bigger money amount needs to go on top, which will always be the amount you are paying for the item with. If you can, write out the math by hand and then check it with a calculator. If you need to use a calculator to do the subtraction, go ahead. Write the answer down below. Don't forget your dollar signs $ and decimal points.
