

On the whole: Spokane Public Schools believes that successful schools focus on educating the whole child. To truly launch a Whole Child Focus program, schools, families, and the community must partner to support and nurture the three aspects of a student's development: basic needs, social emotional learning, and academic growth. Learn more ...

Clearing the fog: Please join us for a vaping prevention symposium Thursday, Nov. 21, from 5-8 p.m. at North Central High School. In addition to a community partner resource fair, there will be speakers and breakout sessions featuring representatives from Spokane Regional Health and WA Poison Control.

Rise & shine: SPS is proud to announce a partnership with Kaiser Permanente Washington that will bring a new mental health and wellness program to the district. RISE, for Resilience in School Environments, is designed to help improve the well-being of our students, teachers and staff. Learn more in this video.

All keyed up: Future readiness is our promise to students. Each year, we publish a report of key data tracked around academic proficiency and achievement, absenteeism, and perceptions of climate and safety, which helps us see how we're doing. Check out our 2019 Key Performance Indicators ...

November 2019 edition
This email was sent by Spokane Public Schools, 200 N. Bernard, Spokane, WA 99201

